

WHERE HE BELONGS.

John Dale is Behind Prison Bars.

Quick Work on the Part of Phoenix Officers.

An Attempt to Outrage a Little Girl Will Land a Miscreant in Yuma.

He had a black eye, and there was upon his brow an "x" that might have been the brand of Cain—but it wasn't. He was tall and sinewy and dirty. He wore a white slouch hat, blue overalls and a dust-colored flannel shirt, and his personal appearance was not at all improved by the marks that his hands made across his brow as he wiped away the beads of perspiration.

He stood behind the iron door at the county jail, and he talked to a reporter for THE REPUBLICAN through the bars. Grouped upon the stone floor at the foot of the steps leading up to the barred door, the motley crowd of his fellow prisoners sought in vain to catch some words of the low-voiced colloquy.

The prisoner was John Dale, who on Sunday afternoon distinguished himself by a dastardly attempt at outrage upon a little daughter of one of the leading citizens of Phoenix, as printed exclusively in THE REPUBLICAN of yesterday.

Dale looked as though just recovering from the effects of a debauch, and was perfectly willing to talk—but he knew or pretended to know nothing.

"Yes. It's pretty hot in here," Dale answered.

"It is hot outside, too. What brings you here?"

"I don't know."

"You have no idea?"

"None at all."

"When were you arrested?"

"Early this morning, in a saloon up town."

"And you do not know what you are arrested for?"

"I have no idea."

"Where were you yesterday afternoon?"

"I was around town."

"Where were you drinking?"

"Well, I guess I was drinking some."

"And you have no memory of having any trouble with anybody?"

"I had a fight with some fellow. I was on my way to camp when it occurred."

"The trouble was not about a female—a little girl?"

"No. I don't remember. There were three or four fellows jumped on me. I was on my way back to camp."

"They appear to have done you up pretty well. Where were you camped?"

"Right out on the road, just by the ditch, from Center street just by the ditch."

"Do you live about here?"

"No, I am from Prescott."

"Where were you camped out alone?"

"No. I was with a man named Tooley and another named McCormick."

"What were you doing here?"

"We came down Tooley and I were going back to Prescott."

"Do you belong in Prescott?"

"No. We came there from the Needles. Then came here with Tooley."

"What for?"

"Well, he had some horses. He wanted us to come."

"Are they, Tooley and McCormick, here yet?"

"McCormick is down town somewhere. Tooley went away last night."

"Is he coming back here?"

"He told McCormick he would be back to-morrow."

"And you remember the trouble down by the ditch?"

"Yes."

"Are you sure it had nothing to do with a little girl—that you did not sit down there?"

"Is there any talk about a little girl—any charge of that kind?"

The prisoner became suddenly alarmed at this point, and his flushed face paled perceptibly.

"What did these men attack you for?" the reporter continued, ignoring the query.

"I don't know. They jumped on me, three or four of them."

"You are sure about the girl?"

"There was nothing. Clearly Dale would not commit himself any further than he had already done, and the reporter withdrew.

He has, however, been positively identified and it is extremely probable that he will have time at Yuma for his dastardly attempt, the good of society demanding that an example should be made of such miscreants as he is.

The arrest was made by Constable John Slankard early yesterday morning, Dale being found in the McManara saloon on Washington street and recognized at once by the descriptions of him in the possession of the officers.

The man had not, as was supposed on Sunday night, attempted to escape from the vicinity of Phoenix, although a close watch was kept for him all night.

In fact, it is very probable that as he himself says, he returned to his camp just south of the city limits immediately after running away from Davis, the little girl's rescuer, and that he slept there in a drunken stupor all night, returning to town to get more whiskey probably at daylight.

The man's story as to where he hails from is very much confused, and from his general appearance it is more than possible that Sheriff Gray has an old-timer on his hands.

GOOD MARKSMANSHIP.

Marshall Blankenship Tries Some Target Practice.

There is one vicious dog the loss in Phoenix, and Marshall Blankenship has shown that he is a good shot.

For some days past there has been running about the streets a vicious dog whose owner was repeatedly warned by the Marshal that he must take the animal out of the city. This the owner promised to do, saying the dog belonged on the ranch. However, the owner neglected to take the dog out, and last night the animal attacked and bit a cook at the Maison Dore restaurant, in the alley just back of THE REPUBLICAN office. The wound was painful and dangerous. The matter was reported to the Marshal, who came to the scene immediately, and with one well directed shot sent the pup to a place where, at least, it will not bite the cooks.

Changing Stations.

Lieut. Clough Overton, of Troop D, 4th Cavalry, arrived in the city last night and will join his company to-day which is en route to Tucson.

Troop D, has been stationed at Ft. McDowell for some time past, but as the station there has been ordered abandoned, the troop is moving overland to Ft. Lowell, near Tucson. Their stay at Ft. Lowell will be short, however. The 4th Cavalry is to change stations with the 2nd Cavalry, which is now stationed in eastern Washington and northern Idaho, and after a short rest at Ft. Lowell Troop D, will go to Ft. Walla Walla, Washington.

NOT SEVERELY PUNISHED.

Liquor Sellers Receive Very Light Sentences.

For some time past the Federal officials of the Territory have been making a determined war upon those miscreants who make their living by peddling liquid perdition to the degraded Indians who hang about the outskirts of the several reservations of the Territory. The evil of this practice is not to be very much deplored, because the effect is killing upon the Indians, perhaps, but there is danger in the practice to innocent white men. While the red devils are being killed off by vile decoction of fusil oil, for instance, they become demoralized temporarily and are apt to murder whoever comes in their way. This practice of selling them liquor is, in fact, altogether too common all through the west.

Two liquor sellers were before Judge Kibbey in the United States District Court yesterday from San Carlos, and upon conviction were sentenced to be confined one day in the County Jail and to pay a fine of $50 each. Their names were Mrs. Speers, colored, and W. B. Robinson.

Bee Keeper.

The Bee Keeper Association of Maricopa county has been incorporated with the following officers: President, B. F. Johnson; vice president, John L. Gregg; secretary, G. W. Ingram; treasurer, T. A. R. Irvine; corresponding secretary, Wm. Crosby; assistant corresponding secretary, J. H. Brownell; inspector, W. L. Osborn; directors, John L. Gregg, W. L. Osborn, B. F. Johnson and J. H. Brownell. The capital stock is $10,000, all subscribed.

JOHN'S BEHAN is in town. He says he doesn't care for the superintendency of the territorial penitentiary, but like all the other Zuckites he holds on like a toad.

HELIOGRAPH SIGNALING

SENDING MESSAGES LONG DISTANCES BY FLASH LIGHTS.

Recent Phenomenal Records Made by the Army Officers in Arizona and New Mexico Longest Distance Signalling ever known.

For some time past a detail of one officer and four men from each army post in the west have been practicing in this Territory and New Mexico in military signalling by means of the Heliograph system.

A REPUBLICAN reporter met several officers at a down town hotel last night, and from one of them a brief description of the work accomplished was secured.

"The work has been carried on under the direction of Colonel Wm. Volkmar, Adjutant-General of the Department of Arizona, and we have accomplished the most wonderful signalling ever known," said this officer. "General Greeley, Chief Signal Officer of the Army, was at Bowie Peak in Cochise county a short time ago and witnessed some of the work."

"In our preliminary practice in April we made a connection ninety miles distant, but two weeks ago in general practice we did successful signalling from Mt. Reno to Mt. Graham, in this Territory, a distance of 125 miles. This is by far the longest distance work ever accomplished."

Still more wonderful than this, if anything, however, was our long distance signaling, by means of relays, about ten days ago. In this case messages were successfully sent from Whipple Barracks, near Prescott, Arizona, to Fort Stanton in Eastern New Mexico, a distance, by the circuitous route followed, of nearly 1000 miles.

"In this signalling the messages were flashed from Whipple Barracks to Bald Mountain, thence to Baker's Butte, then to Lookout Mountain, then to Mt. Graham and thence to two or three other small peaks, the names of which I do not remember, into Fort Stanton. In bad weather we went by a much more circuitous route than the one described, being compelled to use a number of intermediate relays."

The result will undoubtedly be of great service to the army. For instance troops in the field wanting to communicate with a post 100 miles off would require three to four days of hard riding, by the old system, to accomplish that object. Now, by the telegraph signalling a message can be sent and an answer received inside of 15 minutes. This will prove especially valuable in case there should ever be another Indian outbreak. In time of actual war it would also be of great service. In case of cutting of telegraph lines messages could readily be sent a distance of forty to fifty miles even in the East.

Colonel Volkmar's report of the work will soon be issued, and it will show that even if the army is not required any longer to protect the frontier, it is doing much good and practical work."

DISEASES OF MEN.

Its Prevalence, Cause and Danger, Treatment and Cure Warranted.

BY DR. MACLENNAN.

Scientific investigation supplemented by experience, has shown that urinary diseases are more prevalent and destructive to life, health and happiness than any other class known to the medical fraternity. They are not confined to the low and degraded portions of humanity, as many suppose, but are found among the pure in heart, the innocent, the truly pious and wealthy.

Many of them are transmitted from parent to children, from generation to generation. Thousands of people suffer untold agonies from their ravaging effects, and meet an early and untimely death, often ignorant of the cause. Though transmitted innocently, the effects of these diseases are not less terrible. It is a sad truth that the innocent are often greater sufferers than the guilty.

Of all the organs of the body few are more important or worthy of attention than those engaged in the urinary functions. In perfect health—that great blessing that so few enjoy—one will scarcely direct a moment's thought to these important organs, and at the first unpleasant symptom good advice, such as may easily be obtained, should immediately be solicited.

This affliction may be the consequence of self abuse, or the result of excesses in mature years, or it may be caused by impaired assimilation of food, or result from some previous sickness; or it may be brought about from over study and a too close application to business, worry and anxiety, as well as excessive drinking and the use of tobacco.

The causes are so numerous and the treatment so varied, that it requires the closest personal examination and chemical and microscopic analysis in order to make a correct diagnosis, without which the treatment is more guess work; hence the folly of wasting time by sending East or to other distant parts for advertised specifics, or to so-called "doctors" who would have you believe that they can understand all the bearings of your case, without ever seeing you, or making a personal examination. Microscopic examination of the urine must be made within a few hours after voiding the urine, and chemical analysis must be made both before and after reaction sets in.

All of you who suffer in this, or any way, should lose no time in consulting Dr. MacLennan, who is located for a short time in Phoenix, at the Monihan building. He can permanently, safely and privately cure you in one-half the time required by others. Consultation free and cures guaranteed by an entirely new method.

Among the chief and most common of diseases is seminal weakness and nervous debility (or loss of nerve power) due to masturbation and venereal excesses. Thousands of young, middle aged and old men suffer with nervous diseases for years and may be ignorant of the cause, when a little timely advice would make life's pathway full of cheer and happiness. When the first symptoms of seminal weakness manifest themselves, the sufferer is notified to become dull and morose and is troubled with indigestion, though the appetite may remain good; but the strength vanishes and the patient grows thin. He becomes indolent and debilitated and loss of memory and all vigor of the sexual organs may follow.

In time he may fall into a complete state of impotence—total loss of sexual power. Among its terrible effects may be mentioned weakness of the memory, confusion of ideas, nervousness, despondency and general weakness. It needs no mirror to reflect the sad condition of the face, the sunken eye, the downcast countenance, the stooping, aged form, all serve to announce the victim's troubles. It sicken kills of itself, but it opens the door to other diseases, such as consumption and diseases of the heart. The unfortunate sufferer cannot sleep. In that intermediate state between life and death intended for the recuperation of the mind and body, he can know no rest, for his dreams are dark and foreboding, and the constant drain upon his system robs it of its vital fluid.
